What a milestone! The a cappella group Les Brünettes proudly celebrates 15 years filled with music, friendship and creative adventures. Since 2010 Juliette Brousset, Stephanie Neigel, Julia Pellegrini and Lisa Herbolzheimer have conquered stages with their unique sound, establishing themselves as one of the leading female a cappella groups. Music and friendship go hand in hand in this band: what began as a musical gathering has evolved into a deep personal and creative connection. They have released five albums, sung in the legendary Abbey Road Studios in London (through the original Beatles' microphones), performed at the Elbphilharmonie Hamburg and several TV shows in French, Italian, Spanish, English and German. They have won awards and even started families! The challenges they've faced seem to bring them closer together rather than apart as they have worked in their original lineup since their founding, supported by brilliant colleagues. These challenges strengthen their bond which is reflected in their music. The young jazz students have developed into arrangers and songwriters, celebrated interpreters of the Beatles, even releasing an album with only their own compositions. Each of the four shines in her own unique way.

To celebrate this special occasion Les Brünettes will embark on an anniversary tour in 2025. With concerts promising an exciting musical journey through the highlights of their career - from their early beginnings to award-winning performances on international stages - they captivate their audience with their typical passion and energy. Not only die-hard fans can look forward to favorite pieces and classics from their previous programs.
